Single Stableford

Sunday, 14th July 2024

After a few big weeks of golf with the tournament last week and the club championships prior to that a small but quality field competed in Sundays single stableford day. Just 11 golfers made the most of the nice conditions after the rain during the week.

Rodney Poole must've finally found some form with his driver coming home winner with a nice score of 38. Word was he was on fire with his putter, could not miss. Runners up was Deane Munro with a score of 32. The wheels well and truly came off last week's tournament handicap winner Kevin Jones who took home the NAGA with a score of 20.

There were no nearest the pins on any of the par 3s. But carrying on with the new tradition of reporting on silly stuff happening on the golf course, I did see someone completely shank their ball almost straight sideways off the 14th tee for it to end up on the 13th sand green. No names, but anyone who knows the course would know only a left hander could do that, so that narrows down the possibilities by quite a bit.

sThis Sunday it's a single par event, 11.30 assembly for a midday start. Than the following week it's the North West Ag anti cancer day, 4 person Ambrose, so start organising your teams for what will be another great day.
